TSC IS SPREADING PETALS
for goodness sake

MyCIL's Transitional Skills Center is spreading joy, beauty and hope while providing job training to students through our non-profit
TSC Is Spreading Petals
for Goodness Sake.

TSC students organize donated flowers, rearranging them anew, and then deliver them to the elderly and critically ill. They develop key job training and skills, while those who need it the most get the cheer that flowers bring.

How MyCIL's TSC Students Benefit

The real-world job skills the students practice while participating in our non-profit TSC Is Spreading Petals are key to achieving their independent living goals. They also get the invaluable opportunity to engage with the community. By giving to others in need, TSC students foster a greater sense of self-worth while boosting their self-confidence.

How Our Community Benefits

TSC students design and create individual arrangements from larger floral donations and distribute them to nursing homes, hospice units and senior living centers. These flowers become symbols of joy and caring to a community that is often overlooked. Flowers have been shown to ease depression, inspire social interaction, and both refresh and enrich recent memory.
